Humorous Names and Unconscious Bias: Harari and McDavid’s
Name Stereotypes and Teacher’s Expectations and the College Classroom

Allison Wanda Lend states in her excellent 2015 essay Where My Name Can Take Me that children’s names are far more than simple labels used for convenience between individuals. While this study is often regarded as farfetched, there are several kernels of useful information buried in the Jabberwocky-like prose that Land uses to a great extent through her entire essay.

All information taken from the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 8th Edition

Last updated by RJG on 10/01/2016
Works Cited Page Formatting

- The Works Cited page(s) is placed at the end of the document, beginning on a new page.
- Continue the page numbers from the body of the document.
- The title of the section (Works Cited) should be the first line and centered on the page.
- The Works Cited entries use a hanging indent. This means that the first line is flush with the left hand margin, but each subsequent line is indented .5”. This can be done either by selecting Format >Paragraph and adjusting the indents, or by dragging the ruler markers, as seen below, after highlighting the entire finished Works Cited page.
- The entire page should be double spaced. Do not include additional spacing between entries (leave it double-spaced/do not use an after space).
- All the entries should be arranged in alphabetical order by the first author’s last name. If the author’s name is not known, use the title to alphabetize.
- If you have two or more works by the same author, arrange all the works by that author alphabetically by title. Substitute the author’s name in the second and subsequent entries with three dashes.

