Texts: Taking Sides by Alexander & Hanson, 9th edition

Description: This course will examine the central role of the electronic media in American society with an emphasis on analysis of industry processes and various forms of television content. Prerequisites: MCM 130 or Junior standing. Credit 3.

Objectives: this course is designed to develop literacy related to the electronic media. There will be a considerable writing component: term papers, essays, short writing assignments. You will be expected to hone your writing skills throughout the course. At the end of this course you should be able to:

1. Understand the mainstream criticism & analysis offered in the text
2. Understand at least one other form of criticism (offered in lectures & hand-outs)
3. Evaluate in particular the role of the TV industry and TV programming in contemporary America.

Although the focus is on American television, other media and other media traditions will also be addressed. Various examples of television programming will be screened in-class. Pay attention. Take notes.

Methods: Lecture/Discussion/Debates/Oral presentations/Screenings/Blackboard Blogs and Blackboard Discussion Boards. Students are expected to read all assigned articles, handouts or chapters prior to class and to be prepared to actively participate. Students must be prepared to present in class either individually or as part of a group and to participate in online assignments.

Grading: Term Paper + Abstract (100 pts); Two Essays (50 pts. each); Two Discussion Board assignments (25 pts each); Attendance (5 pts per class: 150 points max), Class activities (max 75 pts.) and blogs on the reading assignments (up to 10 pts each: 150 max)

Grade Scale: The maximum points accrued in the semester will be the base line for a=the A. Then you multiply x .9,x .8, x .7 etc. to get the distribution. Blackboard grades will give you the current number of points possible and you can keep up that way.

You will get separate handouts on the essays, the term paper and on the abstract for the paper.

Note: Discrimination according to gender, ethnicity religion or race will not be tolerated, in class discussions, or foul language. Anyone who in my judgment over-steps the bounds of propriety will be asked to be quiet and/or leave class. We will watch some screenings in class. Be quiet. Take notes. No beepers, cell phones, palm-pilots, etc. allowed in class. No eating, sleeping or doing work unrelated to the class. No visitors.

Attendance: You receive points for attending class. Be there. Be on time. Prepare. Participate. Late arrival beyond 10 minutes is treated as an absence.
September 5th is the 12th Class Day, the last day to drop without a “Q” and receive 100% refund.

Extra credit: The only extra credit possible is when students go to the Writing Center and get their 3 essays and 1 term paper reviewed. There must be official documentation that this process has occurred. Attach the annotated draft to your final copy. The Writing center is a busy place; go early. 5 points each time = max. 20 points
