COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES
This course is designed to give the student an understanding of the evolution of the American criminal justice system. By studying its antecedents dating back to the ancient world we can better understand the changing nature of crime and punishment as well as the diversities and similarities of various cultures in regards to issues pertaining to criminal justice. The components of criminal justice are not new, but have been shaped by the historical process, therefore it is essential to have a clear understanding of what this process consists of.

COURSE METHOD
This course is comprised of a series of power point lectures and films. While the lectures are designed to chronologically follow the text, emphasis will be placed on various problems and controversies which will be dealt with in their historical context. Such lectures and discussions will include patterns of violence, the jury system, the history of capital punishment, the development of law enforcement, and penology as well as other contemporary issues. I DO NOT POST POWER POINTS; PLEASE TAKE NOTES!

ATTENDANCE POLICY
Since the lectures are designed to supplement the textbook, attendance is essential because lectures are not intended to duplicate the text, but to enhance its significance. In addition more than two unexcused absence will result in the student being ineligible for any curve or dropped grades. Excessive absences can adversely affect your grade.

GRADING POLICY
There will be four exams during the semester. These exams will not be comprehensive. Each exam will be equally weighted toward your final grade (25%). If you miss an exam you will have to take a make-up exam. All make-up exams will be given the last week of the semester. Exams will be objective (multiple choice/True and false) question. Study handouts will be given out before each exam.

MAKE-UPS
If you miss an exam you must make it up. All make-ups will be given on May 9.

CELL PHONES and Other Electronic gadgets: These should be turned off and out of sight during class. A violation of this rule will result in the class staying until 12:20 and the student being given an absence for that class.

LAPTOPS should be used only for class related notes. Do not bring to surf, play games, etc. Any violation of this will result in a ban on these in the classroom and an absence for the student.
