M.A in Spanish
Department of Foreign Languages

• Spring Semester Courses 2013

SPAN 5337. Literature Analysis and Research Methods.
Dr. Rafael E. Saumell
Tuesdays 6-8:50/ The Woodlands Center

SPN 537 <SPAN 5337> This course fosters the development of enhanced literary consciousness and capability. Via selected readings and discussion, the student will develop a familiarity with, an appreciation for, and an ability to interpret and evaluate Hispanic literature. More specifically they will develop critical skills in analyses and interpretations leading to conducting independent research and writing for both scholarly presentations and publications.

SPAN 5370. History of the Spanish Language
Dr. Enrique Mallén
Online

SPN 570 <SPAN 5370> History of the Spanish Language.
This course outlines the history of the Spanish language over the last two millennia, focusing on the formal development of its phonology, morphology, syntax and semantics.