M.A in Spanish
Department of Foreign Languages

• Spring Semester Courses 2013

SPAN 5371. Contemporary Spanish Literature
Dr. David Gerling
Thursdays 6-8:50 / The Woodlands Center
SPN 571 <SPAN 5371> Contemporary Spanish Literature.
This course is an in-depth study of the major authors, works (including films), and aesthetic currents of the Spanish literature beginning with the 20th century. Texts are studied from a variety of theoretical approaches. Readings and discussions are in Spanish.

SPAN 5372. Spanish for Technical Composition
Dr. Rafael E. Saumell
Mondays 6-8:50 / The Woodlands Center
SPN 572 <SPAN 5372> Spanish for Technical Composition.
This course focuses on forms of exposition, including narration, to develop students’ competency to write clear and effective technical prose for various professions including health, law, criminal justice, education, science, technology, literature and business. Readings and discussions are in Spanish.

SPAN 5374. Studies in Spanish Linguistics
Dr. Manuel Triano-López
Wednesday 6-8:50 / The Woodlands Center
SPN 574 <SPAN 5374> Studies in Spanish Linguistics.
This course provides a detailed description of the phonology, morphology, syntax and semantics of the Spanish language. Related topics such as language variation and bilingualism in the United States are also discussed.