

Principles of American Government
3 Credits
Spring 2017

Professor: Dr. Heather Evans

Course Description

This course deals with the origin, development, and Constitution of the American governmental system, citizenship and civil rights, suffrage, the national party system, the national executive, organization of congress, and the national judiciary. This course meets the legislative requirement for a course on the Constitution of the United States.

Course Objectives

This course provides an overview of American national government. In this class, we will explore the rules, institutions, participants, and products of American politics.

Students enrolled in POLS 2305 will:

- 1) Gain factual and analytical knowledge of governmental institutions, political behavior, civic engagement, and their political and philosophical foundations
- 2) Gain knowledge of civic responsibility and gain the ability to engage effectively in American democracy.

Required Text

The reading for the class comes from:

- "Keeping the Republic - Brief Edition" Christine Barbour and Gerald Wright

For the KTR textbook, be sure you get the paperback Brief edition, not the hardcover. (If you have a deal on the hardcover version and want to use it, go ahead. It's the same book with a couple of extra chapters we won't use. But it costs more so if you are buying new, get the Essentials.)

Grading

Grades in this course will be based on four exams (worth 100 points each) and two short papers (worth 50 points each).

Exams

Now that I have taught this course many many times, and since I have had a husband that has finished his degree online, I understand the needs of those that take online courses. Because of this, students can log on at any time and complete the exams, however if you fail to complete the exams by 11:59pm on the last day of class, you will receive a zero for those exams.

The last day of our course is May 4th! Make a note of this now. There is no cumulative final in this course.

The last time I taught this course in this manner, a few students actually took all of their exams within the first week and made an A! I was impressed.

These exams will be primarily multiple choice, true/false and I.D. type questions, drawn from the readings and the lecture notes. These questions will be descriptive and analytic. That is, they may ask something as simply descriptive as how many members are in the House of Representatives, or they may ask you to draw some analytic conclusions about the respective functions of the House and the Senate, or to determine the importance or significance of an institution or policy. Memorization alone will not suffice for these quizzes; you will have to think about the material as well. I would suggest visiting the website offered with the book, which has practice quizzes as well as flashcards that will help you review the book's key terms.

There will be 50 multiple choice questions in each exam. Each question is worth 2 points. You will have 60 minutes to complete the exam once you enter it. At the end of the 60 minutes, you will be kicked out of the exam and not allowed to finish.

Papers

There are two short written exercises (papers) in this course as well. Unlike the exams, these papers have due dates. The first paper is due on February 24th at 11:59pm, and the second paper is due on April 21st at 11:59pm. Details on these two papers is given on the "Papers" tab on the left hand side of the Blackboard page.

*Note: I do accept late work but there will be a 5 point deduction in your grade for each day the paper is late. Since the papers are each worth 50 points, that means if you turn it in one day late, the highest grade you can receive is a 45. I will accept papers up to one-week late.

Final Grades

Course grades will be calculated according to the following scale: A = 450 points or more; B = 400 to 449.99 points; C = 350 to 399.99 points; D = 300 to 349.99 points; F = less than 300 points. Once the course is over, final grades will be submitted to the University.

Academic Dishonesty:

All students are expected to engage in all academic pursuits in a manner that is above reproach. Students are expected to maintain honesty and integrity in the academic experiences both in and out of the classroom. Any student found guilty of dishonesty in any phase of academic work will be subject to disciplinary action. The University and its official representatives may initiate disciplinary proceedings against a student accused of any form of academic dishonesty including but not limited to, cheating on an examination or other academic work which is to be submitted, plagiarism, collusion and the abuse of resource materials. For a complete listing of the university policy, see:

Dean of Student's Office

Student Absences on Religious Holy Days Policy:

Section 51.911(b) of the Texas Education Code requires that an institution of higher education excuse a student from attending classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day, including travel for that purpose. Section 51.911 (a) (2) defines a religious holy day as: "a holy day observed by a religion whose places of worship are exempt from property taxation under Section 11.20...." A student whose absence is excused under this subsection may not be penalized for that absence and shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment from which the student is excused within a reasonable time after the absence.

University policy 861001 provides the procedures to be followed by the student and instructor. A student desiring to absent himself/herself from a scheduled class in order to observe (a) religious holy day(s) shall present to each instructor involved a written statement concerning the religious holy day(s). The instructor will complete a form notifying the student of a reasonable timeframe in which the missed assignments and/or examinations are to be completed. Students with Disabilities Policy:

It is the policy of Sam Houston State University that individuals otherwise qualified shall not be excluded, solely by reason of their disability, from participation in any academic program of the university. Further, they shall not be denied the benefits of these programs nor shall they be subjected to discrimination. Students with disabilities that might affect their academic performance are expected to visit with the Office of Services for Students with Disabilities located in the Counseling Center . They should then make arrangements with their individual instructors so that appropriate strategies can be considered and helpful procedures can be developed to ensure that participation and achievement opportunities are not impaired.

SHSU adheres to all applicable federal, state, and local laws, regulations, and guidelines with respect to providing reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities. If you have a disability that may affect adversely your work in this class, then I encourage you to register with the SHSU Counseling Center and to talk with me about how I can best help you. All disclosures of disabilities will be kept strictly confidential. NOTE: No accommodation can be made until you register with the Counseling Center . For a complete listing of the university policy, see:
