Dear Dr. Hoyt:

Thank you for submitting the following substantive change:

Substantive Change:
   Significant Departure Program
   Doctor (D.O.) in Osteopathic Medicine

   OCIS 50% of a Program
   Osteopathic Medical Education – Conroe
   925 City Central Avenue
   Conroe, TX 77304
Submission date: 4/29/2019
Implementation date: 8/3/2020
Case ID: SC005986

The Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine (D.O.) program, which is consistent with the mission of Sam Houston State University, is designed to prepare graduates to practice medicine safely and proficiently. It was created to help address the current physician shortage in Texas, particularly in the area of primary care. The program will be conducted at an off-campus instructional site in Conroe, Texas.

Instruction will be provided in traditional classroom and laboratory settings for the first two years, combined with clinical rotations during the third and fourth years. The new program was approved by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board in August 2018, with a projected cohort size of 150 students. A comprehensive list of all other programs offered by the University was included, as well as a list of off-campus instructional sites.

Admissions and graduation requirements were provided. The curriculum, course descriptions, rotation schedules, and student learning outcomes were also provided along with a definition of credit hours. Student learning will be evaluated in accordance with the American Osteopathic Association Commission on College Accreditation (COCA) standards. The program will also be integrated into the University-wide institutional effectiveness process which was described in detail. This process involves defining outcomes, measuring attainment of the outcomes, then using the collected data to drive... continuous program improvement. Administrative oversight will be provided by the Dean of the College of Osteopathic Medicine.

The Faculty Roster describes the qualifications of the four full-time faculty members who will support the Osteopathic Medicine program. The faculty members all have related doctoral degrees and appear to be qualified for their assigned courses. Qualifications for future faculty members were also included, and appear to be appropriate. Keep in mind that the ultimate determination of faculty qualifications is the responsibility of the peer review teams who will assess the faculty as part of the institution’s next SACSCOC accreditation review.

Library and learning resources appear to be adequate. The Newton Gresham Library has an extensive collection of physical and electronic resources that support the health sciences curriculum. This includes an estimated 800,000 e-books; 300 databases; and over 400,000 research resources such as journals, periodicals, and news publications. Students may access these resources in person or through the library website. Additional external resources are available through an interlibrary loan system. Reference and research assistance is provided by professional librarians either in-person or via phone, text, and virtual chat. Librarians have also developed online tutorials, research guides, and instructional videos.

Student support services appear to be adequate and are available to all students, regardless of location. Along with standard support such as financial aid, student records, and admissions, the University also provides career counseling, tutoring, and health services. The College of Osteopathic Medicine will provide department-level services specifically for D.O. students such as academic advising, clinical clerkship support, mentoring, graduate medical education (GME) placement, and professional development. Students also have access to recreational sports, leadership development opportunities, and student government activities to enhance their skills outside the classroom.

The physical resources appear to be adequate. The Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine program will be conducted at a newly-constructed medical education building in Conroe, Texas, approximately 30 miles from the University’s main campus. The building is scheduled for completion in December 2019 and will have approximately 107,000 square feet of space. The space will include classrooms, offices, a simulation lab, a skills lab, and an OSCE testing center. The College of Osteopathic Medicine will also have a clinical site for faculty practice situated near the medical education building. The University already has technological infrastructure in place to support the technical needs of the new program.

Financial support for the program appears to be adequate, and a five-year projected budget was provided. Revenues will come from student tuition and fees, private donors, plus practice plan income and research grants. Expenses will include faculty salaries, program administration, and facilities. Revenues are anticipated to surpass the expenses each year of the program’s operation.

Policy Update
Please note that, at its meeting in June 2018, the Board of Trustees approved modification of the Substantive Change Policy for SACSCOC Accredited Institutions Policy Statement, for any type of substantive change requiring approval. If an approved substantive change has not been implemented within two years of action by the SACSCOC Board of Trustees, the institution will need to submit a new prospectus for the change or application for a level change.

The Board of Trustees of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges reviewed the materials seeking approval of the Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine (D.O.) degree program and the Osteopathic Medical Education — Conroe off-campus instructional site (OCIS). It was the decision of the Board to approve the program and the site, and include them in the scope of the current accreditation. The site will be evaluated again as part of the institution’s fifth-year or decennial review.

Enclosed is an invoice for $500 to help defray the cost of reviewing the prospectus.

Should you need assistance, please contact Dr. Steven M. Sheeley at 404-679-4501, ext. 4584 or via email at ssheeley@sacscoc.org.

Please include the Case ID number above in all submissions or correspondence about this substantive change.

Sincerely,

Belle S. Wheelan, Ph.D.
President
