HIPs generally:

- Involve a greater student investment of time, effort, and purposeful attention to learning.
- Allow students to interact with faculty, staff, and peers concerning substantive matters, and build sustained, substantive relationships.
- Allow students to experience diversity and engage people across their differences.
- Involve a student-centered approach to the curriculum or development of competencies.
- Involve frequent and substantive feedback for students.
- Provide opportunities for students to discover the relevance of, and apply, integrate and synthesize knowledge gained in and out of the classroom within the context of real-world applications and new situations.
- Provide the opportunity for students to be meta-cognitive and reflect on their experiences and the person they are becoming.
Resources

Resources to assist you in development of your plan:
- Course Transformation Guide from Carl Wieman Science Education Initiative at the University of British Columbia - http://www.cwsei.ubc.ca/resources/instructor_guidance.htm
- Impact of faculty development reports, Association of College and University Educators - http://acue.org/about/impact/
- Description of some HIPs from AACU - http://www.aacu.org/leap/hips

Project Plan

Two to five-page description of the project, including how the educational intervention is related to evidence-based practices (with references), expected faculty and student outcomes, approximate number of students impacted, course(s) and majors impacted, how the intervention fits into the course learning objectives and curriculum of the major, and assessment plan. References will not be included in the five-page limit. If the primary course impacted is hybrid or online, explain how this is related to the intervention, and what components (if any) will be face-to-face and which will be online. This should be provided as a MS Word document.
PACE can provide assistance in developing the proposal, especially related to the assessment plan.

Budget

Brief itemized budget description. Faculty can request up to $2,000 each for stipends to compensate project effort. Project expenses up to $3,000 can be requested related to books, software, etc.
