MENTAL HEALTH AND SCHOOL SAFETY: STRATEGIES TO IMPROVE STUDENT MENTAL HEALTH IN TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The mental health needs of students has been a key issue in the school safety debate but has not been a key focus of many solutions. A mixed methods study that included archival data from the Texas Educators’ Needs Assessment Regarding School Safety and Victims Services (Fuller et al., 2020) was analyzed with a goal to identify the connections between mental health awareness and school safety. The research conducted incorporated the responses and comments K-12 teachers who participated in the needs assessment had regarding mental health and school safety. Results have been outlined as recommendations for improving mental health awareness in Texas public schools.
