Sarah Johnson

Thesis Defense
College of Humanities and Social Sciences
Department of History
M.A., History

Land of Suffering: The Lived Civil War Experience of Indigenous Women

This thesis explores the experiences of Indigenous women during the American Civil War which have traditionally been ignored by popular historiography. Additionally, this work details these experiences by focusing on the active role that these women played in the survival of themselves as well as their communities and families.

Event Information
March 28, 2022
2:00 pm
History Department Conference Room

Committee Members
Dr. Benjamin E. Park
Dr. Willis Okech Oyugi
Dr. Nancy Baker