

Kelsi Moscrop-Blake

Thesis Defense
College of Criminal Justice
Department of Criminal Justice &
Criminology
MA, Criminal Justice &
Criminology

The Moderating Role of Marijuana Policies on the Association Between Social Bonds and Marijuana Use

This study examines whether increased availability to marijuana erodes the effects of protective factors against adolescent marijuana use. The National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) is used to examine whether state-level medical marijuana policies and perceptions of state-level marijuana possession penalties moderate the relationship between social bonds and marijuana use among adolescents.

Event Information

March 26, 2024

3:00pm

George J Beto Criminal
Justice Center

Committee Members

Dr. Wanda Leal

Dr. Peter Lehmann

Dr. Elizabeth Hartsell

Sam Houston State University

PUBLIC DEFENSE ANNOUNCEMENT