HONORING TRADITIONS.
CREATING FUTURES.
The Campaign for Sam Houston State University

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

We are proud to be launching the most ambitious and comprehensive campaign in our university's history. "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures." addresses facilities, scholarships, programs, endowments, and much more. We've identified four major priorities:

- Academic support and student enrichment;
- Startup funding for the College of Osteopathic Medicine program and program enhancement for the College of Health Sciences;
- A facility upgrade at Gibbs Ranch for Agricultural Sciences; and a
- Renovation at Bowers Stadium for Athletics.

We want to continue to give talented students opportunities that might not otherwise be available to them, but it becomes more of a challenge as we face less federal and state funding, skyrocketing operational costs, and an increasingly competitive market for recruiting. Attracting future leaders, eminent scholars and researchers remains critical to our continued success. We need support from our friends and alumni to achieve these goals.

A great tradition at SHSU is to inscribe the word "Honor" inside each class ring. It is both a tribute to our namesake and a reminder to stand up for your beliefs. Our founding was based on the conviction that education can make a difference. Your gifts during this campaign will enable us to affect lasting change. It's time to honor our traditions by creating futures.

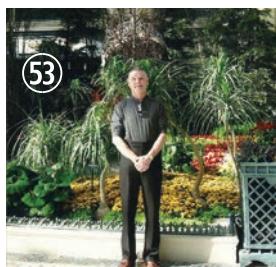

Cast into the inside of the official Sam Houston State University class ring is the word "Honor." When Sam Houston joined the U.S. Army in 1813, Elizabeth Houston (Sam's mother) understood her son's decision. She called Sam to her side and handed him a musket saying "never disgrace it: for remember I had rather all my sons should fill one honorable grave, than one of them should turn his back to save his life." She told him to always remember, "while the door to my cottage is open to brave men, it is eternally shut against cowards." Elizabeth Houston placed a small gold band on his finger with a one-word inscription—HONOR.

Dana G. Hoyt
President, Sam Houston State University

The Annual Report to Donors celebrates and recognizes the people who through their generosity and support have made a commitment to the future of our university and our students. Gifts made between September 1, 2015 and August 31, 2016 are reflected in this publication.

SECOND CAPITAL CAMPAIGN 'HONORS TRADITIONS, CREATES FUTURES'

Sam Houston State University made history in 2006 when the university formally launched its first ever Capital Campaign. The campaign's $50 million goal was surpassed by more than $10 million in a shorter amount of time than originally thought, providing encouragement for future endeavors with larger goals to work toward.

A. D. 1889.

While capital campaigns are typically associated with bricks-and-mortar projects, in recent years these financial action plans have become much broader, addressing facilities, scholarships, programs, endowments, and more.

Just five years after completing its first campaign, the university has once again found that the school must make some major decisions about its future and the path it should take to ensure success.

"With university enrollment consistently growing, workforce changes dictating new program requirements, state and nationwide shifts in demographics, and increasing competition for the brightest and most talented students, faculty and staff, Sam Houston State University has found itself at a crossroad of determining what new direction the institution should take," said SHSU President Dana Hoyt.

With a goal of $125 million over five years, four priorities have been identified for fundraising:

- Startup funding for the College of Osteopathic Medicine program and program enhancement for the College of Health Sciences
- A facility upgrade at Gibbs Ranch for Agricultural Sciences

GIFT, VISION CARRY CAMPAIGN TRADITION FORWARD

Almost 140 years later, "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures" shares many similarities with the campaign to establish Sam Houston Normal Institute—its success depended on the recognition of the value of education, the facilities in which to learn, and the funding to support programs.

"In the mid-1800s, the State of Texas recognized the need for improving education, and they knew the key was having quality teachers in the classrooms," said Mac Woodward, director of the Sam Houston Memorial Museum.

"When the Peabody Education Fund approached Gov. Oran Roberts with the matching funds to establish a normal school (teacher training institute), that was the spark that put everything together for what would become Sam Houston State University."

Prominently located on a hill in Huntsville was the vacant Austin College building. The structure had been built by the Texas Synod of the Presbyterian Church and dedicated in 1852. However, following two yellow fever epidemics in Huntsville and the Civil War, the college was moved to Sherman, Texas. Several other groups had attempted to establish an educational presence in the building, but were not successful.

"Members of the Huntsville community were not discouraged, however," Woodward said. "They had a vision the facility could be used for education, while providing an economic and cultural benefit to the area."

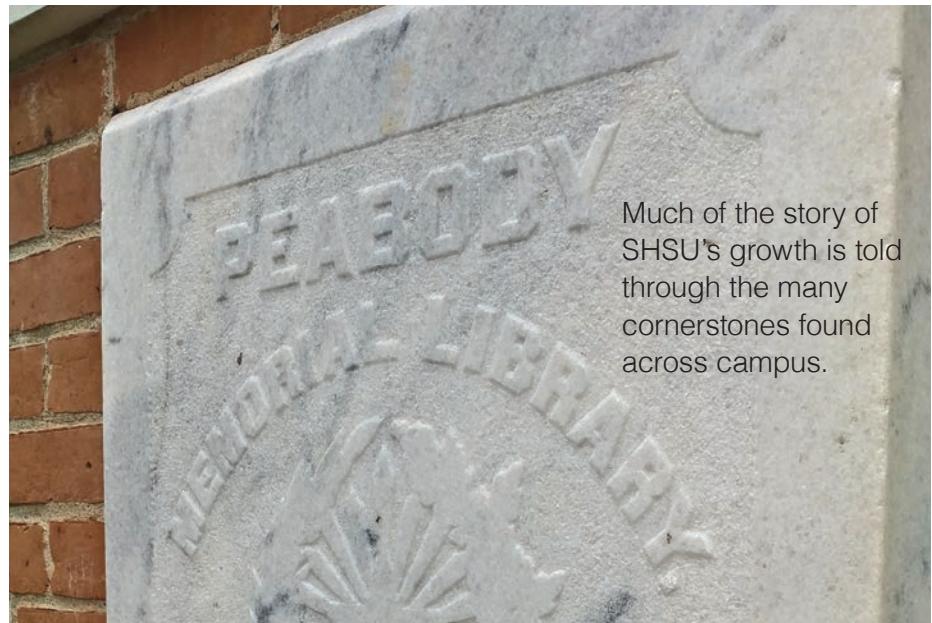

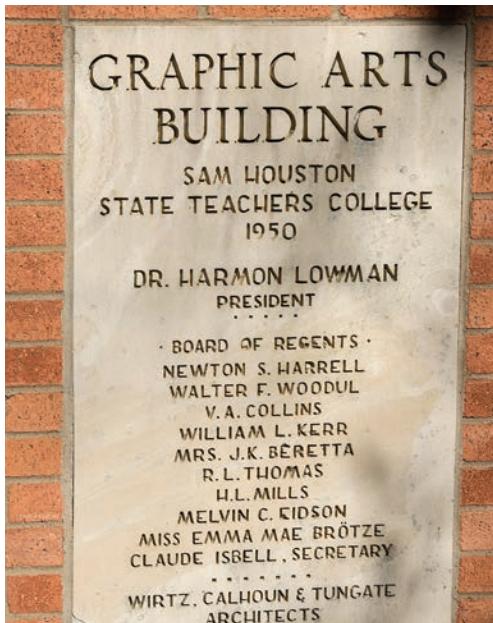

Several Huntsville businessmen purchased the Austin College building and surrounding property, and a delegation of citizens traveled to Austin to lobby for legislation to establish the Sam Houston Normal Institute in the town.

Along with tremendous support from the Peabody Education Fund, in addition to the donation of the land and building, approximately 40 Huntsville citizens pledged various amounts of money totaling $50,000 for renovations to help get the school started. Each senate district paid room, board and tuition for at least two students from their area who agreed to come to college for two years, then return to their communities to fulfill a teaching obligation.

The legislature passed the act on April 21, 1879, with the promise from the citizens of Huntsville that the facility and property would be turned over to establish "the Normal." On Oct. 10, 1879, the first classes were held in Austin Hall.

As those first graduates returned to their communities to teach, and the value of their formal education was recognized, Sam Houston Normal gained supporters and the school was able to move forward. Since then, graduates from seven colleges have not only helped improve the quality of life in the state, but also have made differences impacting the world. ○

Honoring, con't.

- Renovation at Bowers Stadium for Athletics
- Academic support and student enrichment

“Sam Houston State University has always been a remarkable and unique place to receive an education and grow personally and professionally,” Hoyt said. “We now have the opportunity to empower those individuals who make the university such a special place to pursue tomorrow’s great ideas. It’s time to honor our traditions by creating futures.”

The cost of a college education has increased steadily throughout the years, yet SHSU has been able to offer an exceptional education while remaining affordable.

“We want to continue to give talented students opportunities that might not otherwise be available to them,” said Hoyt. “However, this becomes more of a challenge as we face less federal and state funding, skyrocketing operational costs, and an increasingly competitive market for recruiting. To be able to attract future leaders, as well as eminent scholars and researchers, we need support from our friends and alumni.”

Facilities are important, too. A university cannot deliver a valuable education and accomplish its goals without an investment in capital, as well as academics.

“Sam Houston State University is more than an institution of higher learning—we are a community,” said Hoyt. “Investing in facilities that support our campus community and provide a stimulating learning environment guarantees SHSU’s continued growth and strength.

“With the gifts that we receive from our supporters during this campaign, we can affect the type of transformative change that can be felt throughout the state and across the world,” she said. ○

CO-CHAIRS BRING HISTORY OF SUCCESS TO CAMPAIGN

CAMPAIGN CO-CHAIRS
CHARLIE AMATO AND GARY DUDLEY

“I believe it’s important to support Sam Houston State University on an ongoing basis because so many of the things the university is doing now, and will be able to accomplish in the future, will benefit people across the state and nationally,” capital campaign co-chair Gary Dudley, recently said.

“The pride of being associated with the university is tremendous,” campaign co-chair Charlie Amato added. “As a member of the Texas State University System Board of Regents, I’ve had the privilege of visiting other campuses across the state. When I go to Huntsville, I am so impressed with the Sam Houston State students and the way they conduct themselves.

“Also, it’s very exciting to observe the quality of education and learn about the new disciplines that the university offers in response to the demands of the workforce,” he said. “I encourage any alum who has not already done so to return to campus and get engaged with any of the number of programs available. It would make them so proud.”

As founders and owners of San Antonio-based SWBC—a multi-faceted, privately-held financial services firm with more than 2,600 employees—Amato and Dudley know what it takes to run a successful operation. The company’s success has allowed the businessmen to expand and diversify their enterprise—including five car dealerships, a real estate development company, and part ownership of the San Antonio Spurs.

“Operating a university is similar to running our business,” Amato said. “You can never take a break or even slow down. With all the new projects and programs that are added to a university every year, it requires additional capital and additional funds. That’s not any different than it is here with our business at SWBC.”

Both Amato and Dudley came from humble beginnings, growing up in small refinery towns in Texas. Attending Sam Houston State opened doors to them that might not have been opened otherwise.

“I think that any Sam Houston alum can reflect back and think of how different their life would be today if they had not accomplished that goal of graduating,” Amato said. “I can assure you that the quality of our lives would be much different from the way they are now.”

While gifts from the comprehensive capital campaign will support university programs and new construction, funding also will be used to attract and retain talented faculty.

“It’s very important the university continues to recruit high-quality faculty for teaching, research and service,” Dudley said. “We know from our time as students, and what we hear even today, that Sam Houston State University professors positively influence a student’s academic success. We don’t hear that about other universities as much.

“Charlie and I have been fortunate enough to come across some of our former professors through the years, and we often tell them how much we appreciate the impact they had on our professional growth,” he said. “We know how valuable their interaction and encouragement were for our success, and we want to be a part of continuing that tradition with current and future students, as well.”

While both co-chairs said they understood how graduates across the generations get busy with life and put their college days behind them, they both encourage former students to attend events hosted by the university—either on the main campus or in their own communities—to re-live a bit of Bearkat Pride.

“From time to time, we have employees in our company tell us their son or daughter has been admitted to Sam Houston State,” Dudley said. “Then they tell us how proud they are of their student and how thankful they are that their child was accepted to such a great school.”

“I was guilty of not going back to campus for about 20 years after I graduated,” Amato said. “Former SHSU President Jim Gaertner asked Gary and me to serve on the Advisory Board of the SHSU College of Business Administration, which required us to go back to the university from time to time.

“That was such a blessing,” he said. “There is no way to describe the feeling you get from being involved and seeing first-hand all the wonderful things that are happening with our university. I hope that everyone who has had any relationship with Sam Houston State will take advantage of re-connecting and be a part of its future growth.” ○

THE AUSTIN HALL SOCIETY

The society commemorates the oldest building on campus, dedicated in 1851 for Austin College with Gen. Sam Houston in attendance. A group of Huntsville citizens acquired the building and donated it to the state in 1879 to open Sam Houston Normal Institute.

THE HARRY F. ESTILL SOCIETY

The society commemorates the university leader who served as president for 29 years, longer than anyone in Sam Houston State history. Among his many achievements, the curriculum was expanded and the first baccalaureate degree was awarded in 1919.

MAJOR ADVANCEMENTS IN AGRICULTURE ON HORIZON

Agriculture today is about so much more than it was when the Department of Agriculture was established in 1909 under the direction of Sam Houston Normal Institute President Harry Estill.

Advances in technology and practices have helped agriculture professionals become more productive, more efficient and better adapted to challenges that are often beyond their control.

The agriculture program at Sam Houston State University has grown substantially in enrollment over the past 20 years, and with the increase has come the need for innovative ways to connect students to the information that will make them more marketable.

Unfortunately, several buildings supporting the program are located in a variety of locations across Huntsville and have outdated structures and technology.

"We've done remarkably well in our enrollment growth over the decades, even with our aged facilities, to be competitive with our peer institutions," said Stanley Kelley, chair of SHSU's Department of Agricultural Sciences and Engineering Technology.

"We have experienced a number of significant changes through the years," he said. "As we look back at our history, we've gone from the vocational trades to the science of agriculture with enriched hands-on learning."

"In agriculture, we are growing within our own programs and becoming more specialized," he said. "As a result, our need for more specialized facilities and laboratories is growing, too."

Three structures have been identified for the agricultural sciences initiative of the capital campaign—a meat and food science lab; an animal and equine science center; and a plant science field lab—all to be located at Gibbs Ranch.

"With the majority of our programs in one core complex, the new agriculture center will provide a critically needed location for a quality education for our students, while increasing our visibility and influence across the state," Kelley said. "It will truly be a source of pride for our alumni."

Currently, the meat/food science lab and the animal and equine science center are located on Interstate 45.

"The I-45 complex was completed in the early 1970s," Kelley said. "The Horticulture Center is between Holleman Field and the Huntsville softball field. All three of the facilities have expired their usefulness—not only

"With upgraded facilities, we can prepare current and future students for jobs of the future and enhance their learning and research opportunities significantly."— Clint Fancher the buildings themselves, but the technology, as well."

According to the university's master plan, the property on I-45 will be used in the future for space expansion as the university grows.

"It's just logical to relocate our facilities now, especially when they need to be updated and upgraded," Kelley said.

"The students we are recruiting and inviting to campus are coming from high schools that have much more modern facilities and better technology than we have," he said. "For us to be able to attract those students to come to Sam Houston State, we have to offer an education complete with the skills, tools and knowledge they will be using when they graduate."

"When you look at our history, and then look at the future, it just all fits together. We have done great with excellent faculty and wonderful students, but we need that third link; we need facilities." ◉

A COUPLE COMMITS TO PROGRESS

While shopping for clothes or choosing materials for building a home, Americans tend not to spend too much time thinking about the role of agriculture in their decisions.

"Agriculture is taken for granted by so many," said rancher Eddie Blazek, who along with his wife Cindy are serving as co-chairs of the agricultural sciences initiative of "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures."

"Most people do not realize that farm and ranch families comprise just 2 percent of the U.S. population; yet every single person is impacted by the agricultural process, either through food, clothing, shelter, medicine, or employment," he said.

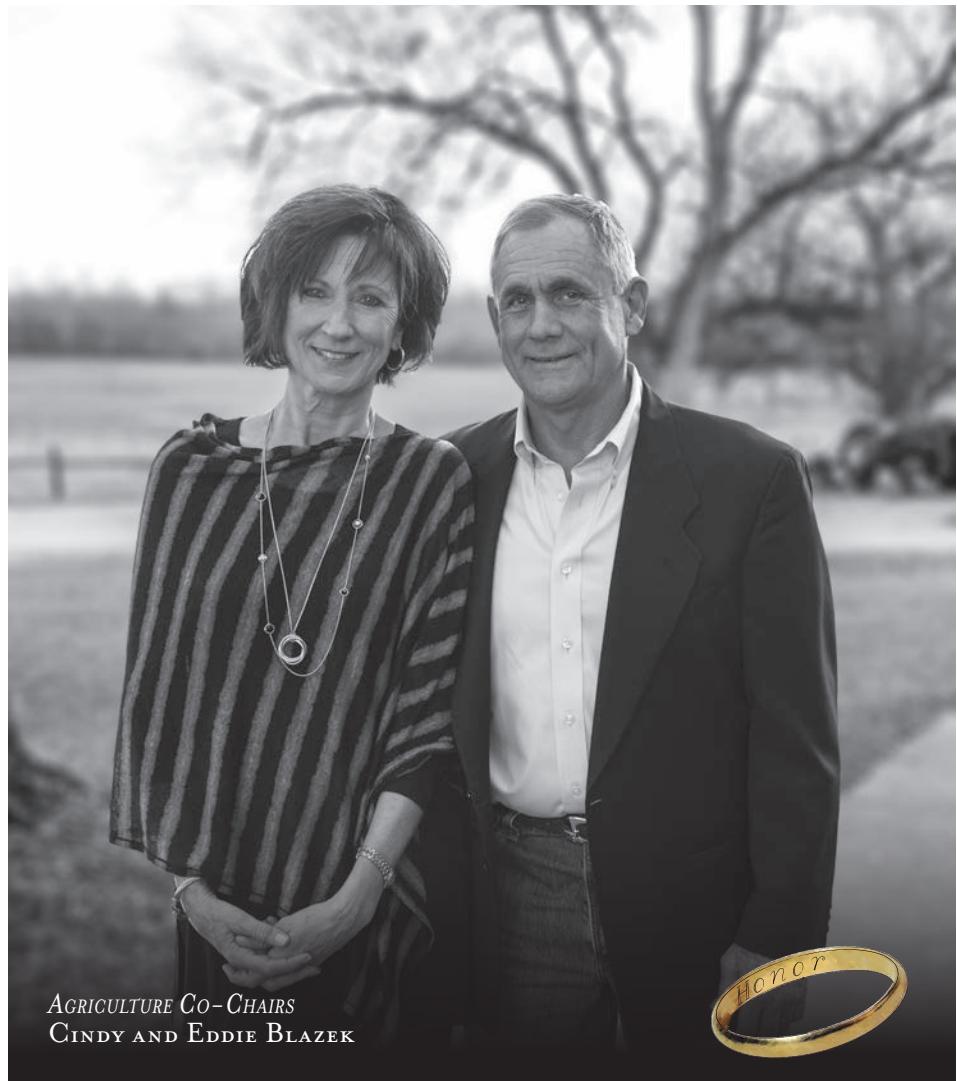

Eddie is an agribusiness alumnus who went into the lumber industry immediately following graduation from SHSU, and Cindy is a fashion merchandising graduate. Today they own Mound Creek Ranch near Leona.

They also have a residence in Italy, the country that Cindy developed a passion for after a visit as an SHSU student.

"My tailoring professor, Mrs. Hill, encouraged me to go on a three-week tour of Europe with other fashion merchandising students and professors," she said. "It was a wonderful visit and I fell in love with Italy. When the tour ended, I promised myself I would go back there. I'm very grateful that Mrs. Hill encouraged me to go on that trip, and I'm thankful that she inspired my love for Italy."

Although the Blazeks have remained connected to SHSU since their graduation and knew about the many exciting accomplishments of the agriculture program, from research to the rodeo team, they were busy building their lives, which did not leave a lot of time to spend on campus.

However, they recently returned for a visit and saw how much the campus had grown since their time as students.

They noticed the many new buildings and improvements across the university; but were somewhat dismayed by something else they saw.

"We were touring campus and when we came upon the ag facilities, it was like déjà vu," Eddie said. "I saw those facilities for the first time in 1970. Here it is more than 45 years later, and nothing has changed. The ag program is using the same old structures that were being used when I was here. I know how much has changed in the field of agriculture since then, and I am amazed that so much has been accomplished at Sam Houston State with these same facilities."

The tour ended at Gibbs Ranch, where the new meat and food science lab; an animal science and equine arena; and a plant science field lab will be located, not far from Interstate 45. (See "Major Advances in Agriculture on Horizon," p. 11)

"Gibbs Ranch is a beautiful place and it's fitting that it will be a centralized location for agricultural sciences," Eddie said. "We are extremely fortunate to have such an ideal piece of land."

"For years, the dedicated ag faculty and staff have put their heart and soul into making sure our students are getting the best education they can," he said. "Just think of all they can accomplish when they get modern facilities and the technology to go with them." □

THE MALLON-SMITH FOUNDERS SOCIETY

The society commemorates the dedication and sacrifices of establishing Sam Houston State Normal Institute. Bernard Mallon, the first president, died 11 days after classes began on October 10, 1879. Hildreth H. Smith took over and guided the college until 1881.

PIRKLE GIFT CREATES RIPPLE EFFECT

In addition to the engineering and technology classrooms, labs and offices located in the new Fred Pirkle Engineering Technology Center, the third level of the building houses classrooms for the agriculture program.

More than just a building, the new state-of-the-art facility has benefitted the Department of Agricultural Sciences and Engineering Technology in significant ways.

Approximately $1 million in scholarships have been committed since the groundbreaking for the building two years ago.

"Anytime you have something new, it creates energy and excitement," said Stanley Kelley, department chair.

"We've been able to capture that energy and excitement, and we've utilized it as a marketing and campaign tool," he said. "The momentum has allowed us to reconnect with alumni and industry and bring them together with the program."

An example of this collaboration is seen with SHSU's recent partnership with Quanta (see story on p. 41).

"Industry leaders began to hear about the construction

"We've done a great job in recruiting talented agricultural sciences students to SHSU with outdated ag facilities that were on campus long before I was a student. Not only will modern buildings and equipment help us continue to attract bright minds, they will also help SHSU provide a first-rate education to future generations of skilled agriculture professionals."

of our new building and our program, and Quanta started researching us," he said. "Around the same time, we were hearing that Quanta was interested in our new graduates, because they (our graduates) were willing to start from the ground up because of their strong work ethic.

participate in a very well-implemented and structured internship program in engineering technology," he said. "They have the grit; they understand what work is; and they are willing to go out and do those tasks that help them get the foundation they'll need to advance in their careers.

"Quanta liked what they saw in our students because of their can do/will do effort," he said. "With the company's investment, they know they are getting hard workers who will be able to grow with their company."○

NEW COLLEGE ADDRESSES CRITICAL NEED

For several years, Sam Houston State University has been exploring one of its most ambitious undertakings in the history of the school—one that not only will bring a higher level of prestige to the institution, but also will make a significant contribution to the health and well-being of Texas citizens.

"With the state's critical need for healthcare professionals, SHSU has decided the time is right to respond by establishing a Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine program," said SHSU president Dana Hoyt.

"Not only do we have strong support from the hospitals in the region, we also have substantial philanthropic support," she said. "Land for the academic health center has been committed, as well as initial startup costs.

"Establishing this program is consistent with our mission," she said. "SHSU continuously evaluates teaching methods and learning environments in order to adapt to the changing needs of employers, the economy and society.

Many of our academic programs have been developed with industry input in order to provide the level of classroom and hands-on experience needed to produce workforce-ready graduates. Other programs, such as the Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine, have been implemented to fill unique workforce needs."

Dr. Charles Henley, former associate dean of clinical affairs at Marian University's College of Osteopathic Medicine in Indiana, has been hired as the founding dean of SHSU's College of Osteopathic Medicine. Since his arrival on campus in November, he has been busy building a plan for action.

"The first step is to prepare for accreditation," Henley said. "We will reach out to local hospital boards, hospital CEOs and chief medical officers to discuss our plans and will involve community leaders, professional organizations, and policy and lawmakers for their support, as well."

Preliminary work must be approved by the American Osteopathic Association's Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation before the process begins, which includes site visits by the accreditation team, document review, recommendations, and compliance. Once the initial cohort of students has completed all education requirements and graduated, the program is eligible for full accreditation.

"The first two years of a medical student's time are heavily involved in basic science," Henley said. "Usually we begin clinical preparation in the second half of the first year. That involves work with standardized patients and in the hi-tech simulation center with mannequins."

By the beginning of the fourth year, students typically are ready to apply to residency training.

In addition to hiring science faculty with specializations in biochemistry, physiology, pathology, anatomy, and other areas, the college will have clinicians on staff. There will be an associate dean for clinical medicine and, eventually, an associate dean for biomedical sciences.

"You can't start a medical school without having a student body, so enrollment management is going to play an important role in what we do," Henley said. "We expect a fairly large applicant pool. The selection process

THE ANNIVERSARY SOCIETY

The society recognizes donors who contribute at least one dollar for each year of the university's existence during the past academic year. On September 1, 2015, the minimum gift requirement for society listing increased one dollar to $136 for the university's 136 years of service.

itself is labor intensive.

"These students are very, very intelligent, focused and aggressive learners. They will bond as a unit and be a strong class," he said. "We want them to have a voice in program development and enhancement. Their experiences as students can provide us with valuable feedback needed to identify areas in which we are doing well, as well as where we need to improve."

The program, as with any new startup venture, should be viewed as an investment.

"It will take substantial resources to establish those things that the accrediting body will accept, such as a new medical school building, outstanding faculty, state-of-the-art technology, and other requirements. We understand that there is a price tag for all these things, but by working efficiently and effectively, we can expect a substantial return."

Henley expects to see that return by the third or fourth year of student-tuition income.

"That's helpful because you need to have that dynamic state in which there is a balance between expenses and income," he said.

Henley feels that the combination of SHSU's community service focus, along with its location, make it an ideal place to train the next generation of primary care professionals.

"Houston is a wonderful city. It has great hospitals and medical centers and has traditionally been a place where physicians go for training and fellowships—so it's usually centered around specialized education. That's fine because we need that," he said.

"However, Texas overall has such a tremendous need for primary care physicians," he said. "This is especially true in east and southeast Texas. We hope to recruit from areas where students will return to practice medicine, such as smaller communities and rural areas where there are fewer physicians. Our goal and our vision is to be integrated into the health care system in Texas and to add value both to communities and the university."○

FOUNDING DEAN BRINGS EXTENSIVE EXPERIENCE

Prior to coming to SHSU to help start up the College of Osteopathic Medicine, Dr. Charles Henley was the founding associate dean of clinical affairs at Marian University's College of Osteopathic Medicine in Indiana.

He has served as an inspector for the Council on Osteopathic College Accreditation for a number of years.

Before coming to Marian, he was professor and vice-chair of the Department of Family Medicine at the University of Oklahoma School of Community Medicine in Tulsa, where he held the Founders and Associates Endowed Chair for Research and was responsible for building the clinical research program for primary care.

Earlier in his career, he was professor and chair of the Department of Family Medicine at Oklahoma State University, where he started the Division of Rural Health and the Division of Research through a combination of Health Resource and Services Administration and National Library of Medicine grants.

After earning his osteopathic medical degree from Oklahoma State University in 1977, Henley completed a residency in family medicine with the Army Medical Corps in Washington, D.C. He continued his career with the Army, leaving in 1997 as a colonel. During this time, he held several academic positions including residency program director, department chair, and was the first full-time director of the faculty development fellowship program at Madigan AMC in Tacoma, Washington.

In his last Army assignment, Henley served as chief of the Policy and Consultants Division in the Office of the Surgeon General and chief consultant to the Army Surgeon General. He also served as commander of the 41st Combat Support Hospital out of Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio.

In addition to his undergraduate, graduate and medical degrees, Henley has a Master of Public Health degree in epidemiology and biostatistics from the University of Hawaii School of Public Health. He is board certified by both the American Osteopathic Association and the American Board of Family Medicine.○

HOW WILL THE COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE BE FUNDED?

The College of Osteopathic Medicine will be 100% self-funded through private support and revenues generated by tuition and fees, no new taxpayer dollars will be used.

If needed, the university will provide short-term financing during start-up. The source of these funds will be from donations or SHSU operating reserves and invested into the college. The college will repay SHSU start-up financing once fully operational.

SO WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO YOU?

- First and foremost, university budgets will NOT be affected by the funding of this initiative.
- Tuition and fees paid by DO students will cover operational and overhead expenses.
- Academic programs will benefit from the success of the college. The university, including academics, will receive a portion of the college's net margin once operational.
- Any additional support services and personnel dedicated to the college's operations will be centrally managed but funded by the college.

Private funding will be used to cover start-up costs until the program achieves operating margin. If private funding does not fully cover start-up needs, SHSU will provide financing through operating reserves. 80% of the DO program's net margin will be used to repay internal financing until fully recovered. The remaining 20% will be invested equally in SHSU academic programs and the College of Osteopathic Medicine. Once the repayment start-up has been met, the net margin allocation will be 30% academic programs, 30% DO program, 30% GME supported and 10% other programs.

'HEALTHY' OUTLOOK FOR NEW INITIATIVE

For the past 14 years through the consulting firm he owns in Austin, Don Gilbert, BBA '74, has served as a consultant/lobbyist for health care clients in most segments of the health-delivery system in Texas. Among his clients are Texas Medical Foundation, Aetna, Accenture, Baylor/Scott and White, HCA, Christus Health, Texas Health Resources, Tenet, Memorial Hermann, Cook Children's, and many other familiar medical organizations.

He was commissioner of the Texas Health & Human Services Commission from 1998 through 2002, and commissioner of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation from 1995-1998.

He has spent his entire career in the health care industry and has been honored and recognized for his contributions to the profession by such groups as the Texas Pediatric Society, Texas Academy of Family Physicians, Texas Association of Community Health Centers, and Dallas Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

In 1999, he was selected as a recipient of Sam Houston State University's Distinguished Alumnus Award, the highest honor the university can bestow upon its alumni.

Q: What notable changes have you observed in health care?

A: I began my career in the mental health field, and I have seen much progress, particularly in that area. Certainly, the greatest advances in medicine and health care in general are those that have been brought about with improvements in technology. The development of evidence-based treatment and outcome-oriented protocols has also contributed to greater accountability and ultimately more efficiency in the way health care is delivered.

Q: What is the role of primary care today?

A: I've noticed a growing appreciation for the fact that primary care is the gatekeeper for all health care. It is so important to have primary care providers who are generalists and can assess the potential for the need for specialty care. In my view, primary care medicine is the first-line protector of health care. There are far too few primary care physicians in Texas.

Q: With so many specialties in medicine developing every day, why is primary care important in the future?

A: As our population increases and ages, the need for physicians across the country, but particularly in Texas, will increase, and this need is especially true for primary care providers. We already have a shortage of 12,000 to 13,000 physicians today in a state that's growing faster than almost any other. We should be challenging ourselves to meet those needs and working on ways to provide enough primary care providers to address an escalating problem.

Q: SHSU has long enjoyed its reputation as an educator of teachers and criminal justice professionals. The university is relatively new to preparing students for careers in the health sciences. Why is it so important to focus attention on this area now?

A: Clearly, as we look at the needs of Texas going into the future, if we are not paying attention to health care issues, we are overlooking a huge sector of the Texas economy and missing service opportunities in both the public and private sector. I think back to my time as an SHSU student; it did not occur to me that a business major could pursue a career in the health care field. The world was a different place then. As we look at it today and see how many parts of the Texas economy and society are touched by health care, we will lose ground to other universities if we don't commit to addressing health-related issues. I think it's a great tribute to the foresight and wisdom of the SHSU administration that they've chosen to embrace this challenge in establishing a role for the university in primary health care.

Q: Our young nursing program has been quite successful and grown tremendously since its inception. We are now moving toward offering a Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine degree. The university has identified health care programming as a major initiative of the capital campaign. What do you hope that SHSU is able to do in this area once the campaign has been completed?

A: My vision is that SHSU will have a significant role in the education of osteopathic physicians and that we seize the opportunity now in front of us to expand the application of the university's mission—not change it. By doing so, we will be recognized as an integral partner in helping solve the health care crisis in this state. The time is right, the energy is right and the opportunity is very exciting. ☺

★1879 SOCIETY

The society commemorates the university's founding and recognizes individuals who make planned gifts. Gift planning enables donors to make lasting contributions that are often larger than their ability to make an outright cash gift. Planned gifts include appreciated assets, bequests, gift annuities, trusts, life insurance, and real estate.

STADIUM RENOVATIONS TO DRIVE ATHLETIC SUCCESS

When Elliott T. Bowers Stadium opened in 1986, fans were amazed at the difference between Pritchett Field, where the Bearkats had played since 1912, and the new facility, which offered a whole new experience.

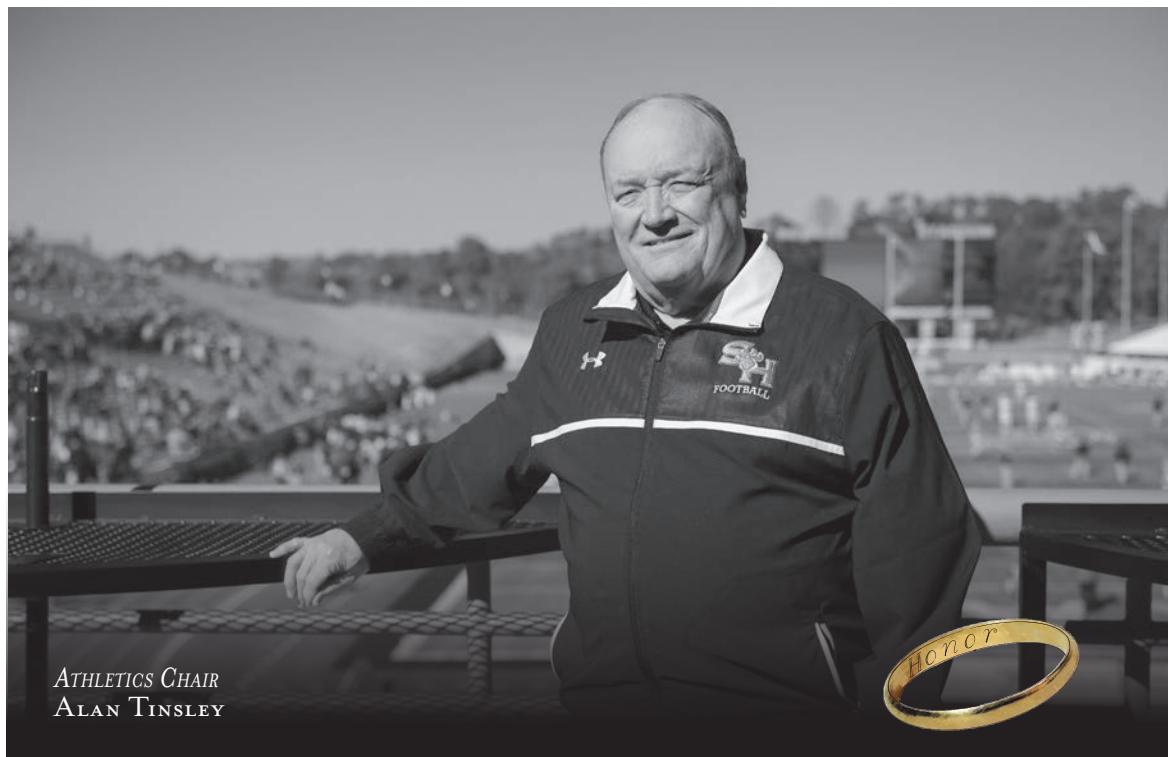

"Bowers Stadium was very much a source of pride when we played our first game there," said Alan Tinsley, BBA '71, chair of the Bearkat athletics capital campaign initiative of "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures."

"However, today's program barely resembles the one 30 years ago," Tinsley said. "The football staff has grown substantially and advancements in technology have changed the way players and coaches interact and prepare for games."

Tinsley, a Madisonville attorney and member of the Texas State University System Board of Regents, has long been a supporter of many programs at Sam Houston State and actively participates in fundraising for Bearkat athletics.

"We've done a great job keeping up with changes affecting our staffing and our student-athletes," he said. "But, the time has now come to focus on our outdated facilities. We have become more successful, and we must demonstrate an institutional commitment to building, supporting, and sustaining our winning programs."

"We've invested substantially in our staff and student-athletes since 2000, and you can see the results," said Bobby Williams, SHSU athletic director. "Across the programs, we've been awarded Commissioner Cups and won championships and conference titles. We've had 25 'Coaches of the Year:'

23 NCAA post-season appearances; and three national title appearances, including a national championship with our bowling team. Since 2007, 25 of our athletes have been named 'Student Athlete of the Year' in their respective sports."

The SHSU athletic program has been successful in these and many other areas in spite of challenges posed by outdated facilities.

"The energy and excitement that has been generated by our sports teams is almost palpable," said Tinsley.

"Not only do you feel it when you step on campus, but just talk to alumni across the state," he said. "There is so much pride and support for our teams; it's almost the topic of every conversation."

Both Tinsley and Williams acknowledge that successful programs are not built overnight—they are developed over time with sacrifices, commitment and tenacity. To continue moving forward, programs must be evaluated and bold steps taken toward accomplishing ongoing and ever-changing goals.

"Nationwide, universities are investing billions of dollars for updating their athletic facilities, particularly their football stadiums," Tinsley said. "Like it or not, particularly in a state like Texas, without football revenues, operating a self-sustaining athletic department is difficult at best. It's not unusual for a successful football program to strengthen an entire athletic department and a struggling football program to cause a university to miss out on opportunities that could provide a healthy income. To compete and ultimately to win, Sam Houston State University must invest as well."

For those reasons, the university has identified the renovation and updating of the West Side Complex of Bowers Stadium as a campaign priority to

SPORTS SCORE BIG THROUGH CAMPAIGN EFFORTS

During the silent phase of "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures," a number of generous donors have stepped up to help fund significant improvements to some of the university's existing athletic facilities.

In 2015, SHSU received new state-of-the art video boards to enhance game-day experiences for Bearkat fans and players who participate in football, track and field, volleyball, basketball, and softball events. Jim and Tonya Ferris and Ann Wismer and Michael Landolt, of the Wismer Distributing Company in Baytown—along with Kurt Stevenson, of Stevenson Beer Distributing Company in Trinity and Anheuser-Busch—partnered with the SHSU Department of Athletics to make possible the addition of the video scoreboards. The scoreboards include the capability for live action, custom animation with full-color graphics, up-to-the-minute sports statistics, and timing and scoring information. All three of the new scoreboards feature sponsored advertising opportunities to provide additional revenue for the athletic program.

Also in 2015, Don Sanders Stadium received a major facelift with the installation of a new 183,040-square-foot AstroTurf playing surface. The new field requires little maintenance and allows practice and play in weather conditions that pre-empted games in previous seasons. In the spring before the new turf was installed, rain affected nine of the 14 weekends of the regular season, resulting in unscheduled doubleheaders. Now, lightening is the only weather-related reason for delays or cancellations of games. The $1.4 million project was underwritten by a combination of athletic funds and gifts from donors who wish to remain anonymous.

One of the most substantial renovations was completed last year when Bernard G. Coliseum received its first major upgrade since it opened 40 years ago. Although much of the attract fans to share special game-day experiences for generations to come.

"The improvements to the West Side Complex will help to generate revenue so that all sports—the ones we have now and those that will be added in the future—will benefit," Williams said.

The cost of the project is expected to be $29 million, funded primarily by private gifts.

Plans include expanding the West Side Complex to 40,000 square feet. The current four-story structure will be taken down and replaced by a new five-level facility.

The first level is designed to be fan-friendly and engaging. It includes a ticket office, a lobby and gallery featuring the history of the Bearkats' success, a gift shop and office space for external operations and the Bearkat Sports Network.

On the second level, the concourse will be expanded to include upgraded concessions and restrooms, as well as a balcony with viewing decks. Club seating with premium amenities will be located on the third level.

The President's Box and eight premium game suites will be on the fourth level, while the fifth level will be designated for media services, television and radio broadcasting booths, game-day video operations, and the public address and coaches' booths.

Plans also call for renovated concessions and restrooms and preparation for future game-day hospitality accommodations on the east side of the stadium.

"With these improvements, we will be able to stay on track with enhancing the fan experience and growing revenues so that we can keep up with the increased costs of operations and equipment," said Tinsley. "It will also help with recruiting and retention—that applies to our coaches, as well as our student-athletes.

"When our donors, supporters and friends step up to help us meet our challenges, it's amazing what we can accomplish," he said. ○

work is visible and makes the viewing area more attractive, a tremendous amount of effort went into updating technology and improving behind-the-scenes equipment, all to enhance the player and fan experience. The floor was removed so that new wiring to support the upgrades could be installed. All of the bleachers were replaced, the VIP Lounge was remodeled, a viewing balcony was added, and the locker rooms were completely overhauled. There is a new training room with hydrotherapy tubs, and a media room was added. The catwalk lighting operating system was upgraded to coincide with other systems in place, and the new video board now has its own production room.

On the horizon is a new 2,500-square-foot golf performance center at Raven Nest Golf Club, which will be funded with a gift from longtime SHSU supporters Robert and Erin Steele. The new facility will be a tremendous asset for the SHSU golf program and will feature locker rooms for both men and women; a common area for a players' lounge, trophy room and meeting space; coaches' offices; indoor-to-outdoor hitting bays for practice in all weather; new swing analysis equipment to measure, correct and improve swing techniques; and a place for club repair and storage.

"The improvements we have made to our facilities over the past couple of years have greatly impacted our student-athletes and shown that the university is invested in them," said Athletic Director Bobby Williams. "We sincerely appreciate the generosity and thoughtfulness of our donors, supporters and friends. Their gifts have helped us overcome some of the challenges we have been dealing with for a long time."

"Our programs have been successful, in spite of our limitations," he said. "With additional support, we will not only be able to continue our success, but get even better. It's amazing what we can do."○

CAMPAIGN TO ENRICH ACADEMICS, STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT

"I couldn't be more grateful that so many donors have shown an interest in my education."

—Olivia Ross

"It is a satisfying feeling to see the financial gift and support I received as a Smith-Hutson Scholar come full circle. I hope to continue supporting my Bearkat family to help them achieve their goals. I know the kindness and generosity I received was for me to share with others."

—Maria Hernandez

In addition to being highly ranked and recognized for having students employed in the Texas workforce within 12 months following graduation, Sam Houston State University is known for its passion for community engagement and making a difference in the lives of others.

Each of SHSU's seven colleges has targeted areas within their programs that will identify opportunities to create new connections, new resources and new avenues of discovery, either through research and education or participation in activities and field experiences outside of the classroom.

Through the "Honoring Traditions. Creating Futures" comprehensive capital campaign, not only will students have enhanced opportunities to learn in modern facilities, but a successful campaign will enable the university to attract bright students, recruit and retain outstanding faculty, increase diversity, support undergraduate financial aid, and strengthen graduate education.

Among the most impactful ways to change a person's life is by helping them to achieve their academic goals in a timely manner. Scholarships pay for expenses associated with earning a degree, giving students more time to focus on their studies. Scholarships also can increase the value of an individual's transcript and resume, thereby increasing the chances that the student will find employment quickly within their field.

Through the generosity of donors, SHSU students have been able to reach heights that might not otherwise have been attainable. ○

"Having a scholarship has helped me keep my focus on school and on my performance on the field."

—Yedidiah Lewis

QUANTA PARTNERSHIP EMPOWERS STUDENTS WITH JOB-SPECIFIC EDUCATION

Sam Houston State University's newest state-of-the-art academic building—the Fred Pirkle Engineering Technology Center—recently opened as home to classrooms, labs and offices within the Department of Agricultural and Engineering Technology.

The building was made possible through the generosity of the late Fred Pirkle, who saw his $25 million bequest to SHSU as an investment in America's future.

While the building was under construction, Houston-based Quanta Services, also recognized as a company invested in the future, established a partnership with Agricultural Sciences and Engineering Technology. This unique opportunity for SHSU students combines academics with hands-on training in ways never before seen and will enhance their leadership abilities and workforce marketability.

The Quanta Services partnership allows SHSU students to develop job-specific skills and improve their industry awareness through course offerings and hands-on experience.

Students will graduate from the program with an increased applied knowledge base and a better understanding of industrial and field operations through a curriculum that combines three enhanced courses, an off-site minimester and an internship program with their core engineering technology courses.

Quanta Services collaborated with members of the SHSU faculty to enhance some of the core courses offered in the engineering technology program in order to increase exposure to the utilities and industrial construction fields.

In addition, hands-on experience will come in the form of a unique minimester course unlike any other and an internship opportunity during which students will have the chance to work alongside a team of professionals.

The Lazy Q Ranch industry-immersion experience will provide a highly interactive case study for students in the minimester course exposing them to the end-to-end process of managing a project in the field.

Built with the vision of the company's founder, John Colson, the one-of-a-kind Lazy Q Ranch facility encompasses more than 2,100 acres in La Grange and includes pressurized pipelines and testing facilities, a live substation, and transmission/distribution lines. The self-powered system enables a variety of training programs in a safe and contained environment.

The structured internship program will allow students to get paid to "test drive" the utilities and industrial construction industries by working in either electrical power or oil and gas services.

"There are few programs and degrees with a curriculum delivered and taught by exceptional faculty and experts in the fields of engineering technology, while providing an effective link that between the theory and practicality application in industrial and field operations of electrical power, gas and oil industries," said department chair Stanley Kelley. "Students who successfully complete their degree through this public/private partnership will possess knowledge, skills and experience matched by no other." ◉

SENIOR SETS GIVING STANDARD BY ESTABLISHING SCHOLARSHIP

Rarely does a student who has not yet graduated come forward with plans to establish a scholarship.

However, senior construction management major Chloe Smith-Nevarez had observed first-hand the value of philanthropy from her own experience and from working as an SHSU Campus Caller. She wanted to show her appreciation for her financial support, while honoring the memory of her grandfather, as early as she possibly could.

Before her graduation in December 2016, Smith-Nevarez was active as a member and a leader in many campus organizations.

She was a Senior Class Legacy Committee member; Student Alumni Association member; Sam Houston Construction Association president; Society of Women for Excellence in Engineering & Technology founder and president; Sigma Alpha Pi national leadership society member; and an Agriculture Sciences and Engineering Technology ambassador.

Through her involvement, she saw the needs of the university, but what struck her the most was knowing that many SHSU students needed financial assistance to help them reach their academic goals. She, herself, depended on work, scholarships and loans to get her through college.

"While attending Sam Houston State University, I grew to know and love some amazing people on campus," she said. "Students who attend SHSU are passionate about learning and are kind and caring."

"During this time, I realized that I could help give people a sense of community and help make dreams of having a home come true by becoming a construction manager."

So instead of asking for graduation presents, she requested donations to help her start her own scholarship to be awarded to deserving students.

"I wanted to start my own scholarship because I received help from not only family, but also alumni and other organizations," she said. "Rather than me receiving traditional graduation presents, I asked for friends and family to donate to the scholarship to help those that are pursuing a higher education."

She established the Smith-Nevarez Engineering Scholarship, named in honor of Silviano Nevarez, her beloved grandfather.

"My grandfather was a hard worker throughout his lifetime," she said. "He had dreamed about having land with a barn, and in his later years he was able to acquire some land—but it didn't have a barn."

Knowing how he felt, the entire Nevarez family came together to construct a barn on his land.

"During this time, I realized that I could help give people a sense of community and help make dreams of having a home come true by becoming a construction manager," she said.

The scholarship will be awarded to an upperclassman who is majoring in any program within engineering technology, with preference given to students who major in construction management.

Contributions to the scholarship can be made through the Office of University Advancement. ○

Despite many challenges in his life, Huntsville native James "Cricket" Gregory maintained a positive attitude and a drive that allowed him to follow his dreams.

Born with a non-reading impaired disability, Gregory proudly graduated from Huntsville High School in 1976 and eventually found himself at Sam Houston State University, where he worked with the Custodial Services Department and flourished in his assignment at the Newton Gresham Library.

"James was just a different kind of person. He was a jolly man; he loved to come to work and loved the people he worked with," former supervisor Larry Brown fondly recalled, adding that he and Gregory shared a birthday, "and he never let me forget that."

"Once he learned what you wanted him to do, you did not have to worry about him," Brown said. "He did his job and did it very, very well. He was one of the most dependable people I supervised."

In 2012, in his 22nd year at SHSU, Gregory began feeling fatigued and lost weight; he was eventually diagnosed with Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, more commonly known as ALS, and died just two months after his diagnosis.

"Until he came down with Lou Gehrig's disease, which took us all by surprise, he was healthy and hunted and travelled with his sister to Colorado," said his mother Shirley Gregory.

"Despite his condition (while ill), James continued to work as much as possible," she said. "Jimmy liked his job; he was happy, he loved the people and he was very content here. Sam Houston was very good to him and he was to them."

That goodness could be seen in the final stretch of his illness, when then-head football coach Willie Fritz brought

SCHOLARSHIP HONORS MEMORY OF BELOVED EMPLOYEE

Gregory a football and T-shirt signed by the players, and a library colleague, Lisa Neely, handmade Gregory an orange-and-blue SHSU blanket.

"We were so touched by how they would come to visit and try to cheer him up," Shirley Gregory said. "They brought him so many little souvenirs from the university; they were his family."

Because of the connections he made during his time at the university, Shirley Gregory decided to honor her son by establishing the James Edward "Cricket" Gregory Jr. Scholarship Fund in 2015. The fund provides assistance to a student who works at the NGL and is preferably an education major, like Gregory was.

"He was so happy here, but he was never able to complete his education," Shirley Gregory said. "To establish this scholarship is a way to try to give back something to the university that will help someone else." ○

JULIAN “JUDE” WALKER ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

In the fall of 2015, Sam Houston State’s football program reached a milestone—its 100th season. As part of the celebration, the university honored Julian “Jude” Walker, who, at 96 years old, was the oldest, living Bearkat football player at the time.

Born on September 3, 1919, Jude was raised on a dairy farm in Edinburg, Texas. He played football for Texas A&M University and the Allen Military Academy before transferring to Sam Houston Teachers College in 1941. He played on the football team for two seasons before joining the United States Navy in 1943 where he was a torpedo bomber pilot in the Pacific. After the war, Jude attended the University of Texas where he received a degree in geology.

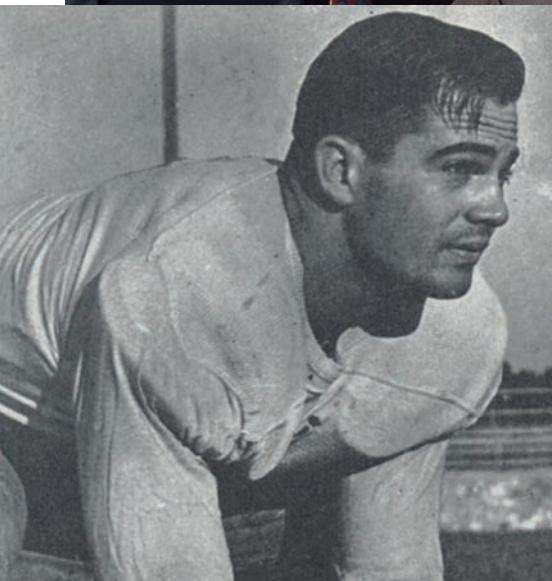

When interviewed, Jude talked about his days as a college football player. “I just liked the competition. Getting knocked around and trying to knock people around. Trying to win, win a game. That’s what I wanted to do—win.”

In the 1940s, football was a 60-minute game and players played both offense and defense. Commenting on the differences, Jude said, “We didn’t have big guys back then. I weighed 159 pounds and our biggest guy, a tackle, weighed maybe 170.”

Late September during the 100th season, Julian “Jude” Walker passed away. His daughter, Stacey Walker, established a memorial football endowed scholarship in Jude’s name.

Why did you establish the endowment in your father’s honor and what are your hopes for the endowment?

We wanted to honor the memory of my father, Julian “Jude” Walker, because he was a football letterman at SHSU in 1940-41, an avid fan, and supporter of SHSU Athletics. We also wanted to help provide financial assistance to football players that would help them achieve their academic and athletic goals for decades to come.

What was the significance of your dad’s reconnection with SHSU during the 100th Season of the Bearkat Football campaign?

At the time, my Dad was recognized as the oldest living Bearkat. He felt so honored and privileged to have that distinction. He left SHSU before graduating so he could join the Navy during WWII but he never forgot the wonderful memories of attending SHSU. My Dad was glad he was able to attend the dinner and auction celebrating the 100th Season campaign.

Jude Walker with Coach Keeler at 2015 SHSU Football Banquet and as a center for SHSU in 1941

Two of the highlights for him that evening were meeting the football players and coaches as well as receiving a standing ovation.

Would you encourage others to support students through establishing endowments, and why is this important?

I highly encourage others to establish endowments as a perpetual way of supporting students who could use financial assistance. Our future depends on educating young minds and endowed scholarships are just one way of supporting the leaders of tomorrow.
