1. Procedure
   a. It is the Department Head's responsibility to make sure that each benefits eligible faculty and graduate student employee is aware of his/her eligibility status.

   b. For benefits eligible employees, a New Employee Benefits Orientation packet should be obtained from the Human Resources Department. The packet will contain the New Employee Benefits Orientation Schedule. This schedule can also be accessed on the Human Resources Department's web site at http://www.shsu.edu/~hrd_www/benefits/orien.html.

   c. It is the Department Head's responsibility to allow the employee the time away from work that is necessary to attend the required orientation sessions beginning on or before the employee's first active duty date. Time does not allow for individual sessions.

2. New Employee Benefits Orientation
   a. The orientation session will include topics such as benefits, university policies, workplace safety, and state mandated training on state and federal employment related laws.

   b. The paperwork completed at orientation includes the documents necessary to initiate an employee's Payroll setup. An employee cannot be paid unless these documents are completed and received by Human Resources before the appropriate Payroll deadline.

   c. In addition to the other documents necessary for Payroll setup, insurance enrollment forms must be completed within 30 days of the first active duty date or before the end of your eligibility period (when applicable). Following the initial insurance enrollment period, the next opportunity to apply for insurance coverage (without a qualifying life event) would be during the next Summer Enrollment period.

   d. Participation in the state retirement plan is mandatory for benefit eligible staff and faculty employees.
